

ANTH 225

HISTORICAL ARCHAEOLOGY

Fall 2014 at PALOMAR COLLEGE

Learn about the methods and theory of historical archaeology, including archival research, artifact identification, and report preparation. Specifically: training in the location and/or interpretation of archival documents, such as Franciscan Mission records, Spanish land grand documents, homestead patents, Sanborn fire insurance maps, assessor's records, and historic topographic maps; training in the identification of ceramic, glass, and metal artifacts and their associated function, time period, method of manufacture, and manufacturer.

Taught by Dr. Philip de Barros on Thursday evenings, 6:00-9:50 PM, in Room MD-124 at the Palomar College Main Campus. Class No. 73811. [CSU Transferrable \[for upper division credit at Cal State San Marcos for the Anthropology Major\].](#)

