1. In the sentence below, label all parts of speech you recognize (nouns, verbs, pronouns, adverbs, adjectives, conjunctions, prepositions):

The huge Mercedes roared into the blind intersection, took a turn on two wheels, and violently accelerated onto the highway as it belched black smoke.

2. Fix any errors in these two sentences:

   a. The child was lost, therefore she started crying.

   b. She bought a new car the salesperson told her to come back in one month for a free car wash and checkup.

3. Find all subjects and verbs in this sentence:

   It was a boring day in the factory when the workers suddenly threw down their tools and walked out to protest the salaries they were getting.

4. Create a sentence with subordination:

5. Which is the correct word:

   a. The company with the most computer products (is/are) coming to San Marcos.

   b. Some of the milk in the huge containers (was/were) picked up and delivered.

6. Correct any problem here:

   a. Each worker let their boss know how bad the pay was at the factory.

   b. She is the one whom he loved.

   c. The instructor noticed a huge spider lecturing the class.

7. Write a sentence with an appositive.
8. Write a sentence with a verbal.

9. Add punctuation to this sentence:

   For the entire weekend at the beach the two brothers sailed swam and hunted for good-looking girls who would be willing to hang out with them.

10. Add punctuation to this sentence:

    She was known for her kind ways however she was cruel to her boyfriend who worked at Microsoft the computer giant.

11. Add punctuation, capitalization and correctly mark all titles (underline or quotation marks) to this sentence:

    I am taking philosophy 100 which is a good class for one reason it is taught by professor Jones author of a famous poem entitled the day the earth stood still.