Three CCCSAT/ETV Programs Recognized with Awards

Three of Palomar College's California Community College Satellite Network/Educational Television (CCCSAT/ETV) programs were recognized with Awards of Distinction and Honorable Mention by the Videographer Awards committee. The committee recognizes projects that exceed industry standards with Awards of Excellence, Distinction and Honorable Mention. The programs recognized include: "E-Conference; Meeting Times" in the Satellite Uplink category; and "Now the Future Begins" in the Educational Institution category. "Photoshop: Digital Imaging" was awarded an Honorable Mention in the Educational Institution/Training category.

The Videographer Awards, an international awards organization, selected a panel of judges to evaluate the more than 2,400 entries from throughout the United States. The panel selected the best of the entries that they deemed were written, produced, shot and edited in an exceptional manner. The awards committee recognized approximately 16 percent of the entries with Awards of Distinction and about nine percent with Honorable Mentions.

The Videographer Awards is an international organization that helps set the standards for the video production industry. Winners come from video production companies, independent producers, directors, writers, videographers, editors and other production professionals; corporate communications departments; educational institutions, government entities; broadcast and cable television operations; advertising and public relations agencies; and other businesses and individuals.
