

Palomar College is committed to expanding civic engagement among students, faculty staff and our community. Periodically we host speakers that share special expertise and help us learn about important issues that affect our society.

This week, we are proud to be joined by a member of the California Independent Redistricting Commission. Patricia Sinay is one of only 14 California residents who was selected to redraw political boundaries in our state.

Purpose of Redistricting:

One of the greatest powers that the people of California have is to elect their own representatives to conduct the business of their government. How the district boundaries are configured can make the difference between empowering and maximizing the voters' voices or minimizing and muting those voices. Redistricting work directly affects equity outcomes in our state. Learn more from Commissioner Sinay by attending this event on Thursday, March 4, 2021 / Noon-1pm. The independent California Redistricting Commission resets political representation boundaries for Congress, State Senate, State Assembly and State Board of Equalization after every census.

The fourteen members of the Commission are committed to drawing fair districts in the best interest of the people, not incumbent politicians.
