PLEASE BE ADVISED - Restrictions for Course Repeatability

- Before you decide to drop, withdraw from, or repeat a class, discuss it with a counselor, financial aid advisor, or veteran's advisor. Always consider the consequences before you remove yourself from a class.
- Repeating a course will affect your financial aid eligibility or veterans' educational benefits. Consult with financial aid or veterans services staff.
- Drops and withdrawals up to and including the 'Last day to drop without a grade' result in the course not being reflected on your academic transcript.
- Withdrawals after the drop deadline will be reflected as an enrollment on your academic transcript with a "W" grade.
- Academic History - These new regulations do not contain a grandfather clause. Past enrollment attempts count toward the enrollment limits. If you already have reached the maximum number of attempts on a specific course, your enrollment will be blocked.

Rules for Courses with Related Content Impact Visual and Performing Arts, Kinesiology

Many Visual Arts, Performing Arts, and Kinesiology courses have been grouped based upon having related content*.

• Art (ART) • Art Design (ARTD) • Art Illustration (ARTI) • Dance (DNCE) • Entertainment Technology (ENTT)
• Kinesiology (KINE) • Music (MUS) • Theatre Arts (TA)

* Courses with related content are clusters of courses that limit enrollment to four attempts for the group including completions, withdrawals, and incompletes. These courses are most often separated by skill level or variation. Groupings of courses with related content are detailed at: http://www.palomar.edu

Course Repetition Changes - Due to changes in the regulations that govern California Community Colleges, limits have been placed on the number of times you may enroll in a course.

Keep these changes in mind as you plan your course schedule. If you require assistance, you are encouraged to see a counselor or participate in the array of student support services and tutoring available on campus.
